LAND AT EDINGHAM CAMP

Edingham, Dalbeattie, DG5 4NA

INTRODUCTION

The land at Edingham Camp forms part of the historical Edingham Munitions Factory comprising parts of a remarkably well-preserved example of a World War II explosives factory, with buildings and earthworks illustrating the function of the main elements of the production of explosives during World War 2. The factory was used for the manufacture of nitro-glycerine and cordite. The buildings were erected by Sir Robert McAlpine and Sons in 1940 and used throughout the war. Some of the remaining wartime buildings are listed by Historic Environment Scotland due to their historical importance.

The munitions factory closed for good in 1960 and has since been utilised by the same farming family for the grazing of livestock. The land amount to about 268.52 acres (108.58 hectares). The land is served by good access and a set of handling pens .

This area of Southwest Scotland enjoys one of the most varied and picturesque landscapes within Scotland, ranging from the moorland of the Southern Upland Hills to the bays and sandy beaches of the distinctive coastline. This is a rural county where agriculture and tourism thrive to form the backbone of the local economy. The area has been relatively unscathed by modern industry.
